NEWS RELEASE

Another exciting addition has been made to this year's Great British R&B Festival with the introduction of a Real Ale Bar.

The mini Beer Festival will be held in the Lesser Muni, which in previous years has acted as the Acoustic Stage, and will feature different ales throughout the event.

During all four days of the Festival there will be 10 kegs serving different ales and as each one runs out it will be replaced with a different one, so during the course of the Festival, there could be up to 40 different ales on offer!

As well as this mini Beer Festival, the Lesser Muni will be used to serve food and drink, with background music from buskers. Entry is free.

Festival spokesperson, Sue Madigan, said: "We are really excited about this addition to the Festival, which we hope will add to the atmosphere and attract some new and different customers.

"This mini Beer Festival will add to the numerous other changes and feel of this year's event, including a new British Stage, afternoon acoustic sessions at the International Stage and a Cliff Stocker tribute night.

"All-in-all it should be one heck of a weekend and we hope as many people as possible will come and join in the fun with us!"
